1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a visual information processing apparatus and a visual information processing method for inputting information to an image processing system or the like by reading information included in an image.

2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, image processing systems or the like provide a function of specifying coordinates, like coordinates of an object included in a video image or those of a character string included in a document image, and storing the coordinates. This function of specifying coordinates is called, for example, as touch and pan. When the coordinates are specified by using a user's finger or the like, the coordinates may be erroneously specified due to a shift or a slip of the user's finger. Accordingly, coordinates are specified in such a manner that, for example, a plurality of coordinate points, each of which is connected to a plurality of pixels adjacent to each other, are continuously specified. As a first prior art, Unexamined Japanese Patent Publication No. JP-A-2004-339257 discloses a visual information processing apparatus for acquiring image 3e33713323
