correct the issue reported. Problem : The driver side of my family's red Pajero has been extremely slow to get cold. At first it only happened in the winter months, as the garage can get cold even during the summertime. But since the last year it started happening almost all year around. Now the problem and solution is very easy and only takes 5 minutes. The solution is just a simple change in the controls and Auto

Pilot settings. Solution : 1) Change the "AP Time" from 4 to 15 seconds. To do this, go to [Settings/Engine] > "AP Time" > change "AP Time" from 4 to 15 seconds. 2) You can then repeat the test by using Auto-Pilot (this is different from the stock Pajero). 3) I did a before & after test and with AP Time set to 15 seconds the A/C will get to between 80 and 90 degrees F within 15 minutes of starting the test. Step 1 : Change

"AP Time" from 4 to 15 seconds Step 2 : Auto-Pilot Test If you have another device running aircrack-ng you should not be able to see a similar issue and if you do, then you should most likely have an older version of cutting optimization pro 5.7.8.11 crack.
