MonteNote With Product Key

Keymacro lets you record macros and make them available to the editing context. For example, you could record a number of function keystrokes and play them back when needed, or make repeating text selections and paste it into a file with another text editing program. The app opens in a new editing context automatically when you record a new macro, and keeps the focus in the original editing context during the macro's playback.

When the playback ends, the editing context is restored to its previous state. Macro playback can be executed both manually and automatically in response to an editing action. In the latter case, it can also be scheduled to occur at a certain time, day or date. Keymacro requires Mac OS X 10.6 or later. It can be downloaded from the App Store.
