The aim of the study was to describe the type of caregiving experienced by a group of caregivers of persons with Down syndrome. Data was collected by means of a questionnaire and analysed using descriptive statistics. There are an estimated 500 families with a child with Down syndrome in Denmark. The results showed that the dyads were often defined by age, and the parents of the person with Down syndrome were described as having varying levels of involvement in the caring process. No statistically significant differences were found between groups of caregivers, if classified by gender of the person with Down syndrome. Male carers had a more emotionally involved relationship to the person with Down syndrome, while the female caregivers were more involved in performing the practical tasks related to the caring activities.Q: Sending a UDP datagram to a computer I have been trying to send a UDP datagram to another computer.
