What is HyperMotion Technology (HyperMotion)? HyperMotion technology, created by EA SPORTS, is powered by a blend of motion capture data collected from all 22 real-life players in the real-life game and the performance enhancements from 22 real-life players. The result is more realistic, immersive gameplay: you get more fluency, realism and athleticism, as well as more precision. HyperMotion technology is activated via a user preference setting in-game, and is enabled by default on all pitch-based gameplay modes. Players can disable HyperMotion technology in-game by using the "Team Tactics" (pro-team) skill. Team Tactics allows the user to choose between Enhanced and normal play modes. In all other non-pitch-based gameplay modes, the feature is disabled by default. For example, the on-ball, run and slide moves are disabled by default. Can I enable HyperMotion Technology in FIFA 21?
