I have a textbox and a datepicker. I want to set minimum and maximum values to the datepicker. I cannot find a way to make the values of the datepicker to be shown in the textbox. Here is my code: Date Of Birth $(function() { $("#dob").datepicker({ minDate: '-5d', maxDate: '0d', constrainInput: true, dateFormat: 'dd-mm-yy', beforeShowDay: $.datepicker.noWeekends }); }); A: i wanted to let you know that in an older version of jquery-ui there were two ways to change the'readonly' attribute. in.datepicker() minDate: '-5d' and in.datepickerOptions() maxDate: '0d' but now, the documentation states that these are deprecated.

The third season of the show follows journalist Julia Hirsch and reporter Donald J. Ellis who head to Missouri to investigate the story of a woman who claims she was impregnated with a fertilized human egg. As Julia and Donald follow the case, they uncover more and more scandal surrounding the the female protagonist, who goes by the name "Jules." Check out the new trailer for Season Three below and come back later for more updates about this show.More broadly, I love this specific story because it allows a lot of insight into a technique I like to call "felt-need analysis". A question may never have been asked in a situation, then be asked by your interviewee to induce change. This question sometimes also triggers their "need analysis" – a book by the same author that explains this technique in detail. Here's an example: I loved this post because it's very useful for a lot of people (including me) who are searching for a career path in their professional life. One question that struck me: "Any advice on how to figure out what to go into?" I worked in a fast-paced environment where I was expected to have a lot of responsibilities. The most important tasks were on my plate: Write code Translate a technical document Work on a project in an office where my entire team worked from home for two weeks on a projectQ: Mouse click simulation in web app? I have a web app in which I need to simulate mouse clicks on various elements to make various things happen. I need to test it on various OS and browser combination. So my requirement is to simulate mouse click on various elements just like mouse clicks. What are the things I need to consider? Is there
