Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a semiconductor laser and a manufacturing method thereof, and an optical pickup apparatus, and more particularly, to a semiconductor laser in which a plurality of injection ports are arranged on a laser substrate, a manufacturing method thereof, and an optical pickup apparatus. 2. Description of the Related Art A semiconductor laser is used as a light source for an optical disc apparatus that reads information recorded on an optical disc such as an optical disk (CD or DVD) and for an optical pickup apparatus that reads information from a magneto-optical disc or a phase change optical disc. The semiconductor laser is mounted as a light emitting device on a base such as a cooling plate. The base has a hole for introduction of air and a water channel for supplying water to a laser chip via the hole. The base is formed of a metal member such as a Cu (copper) alloy or a Cu—Sn (copper tin) alloy. To improve the reflectance of a reflecting layer of the laser chip, a silver layer is plated on the reflecting layer of the laser chip. The plated layer of silver is provided in a circular shape at a portion corresponding to an injection port (injection opening) of a laser diode (laser device). For this reason, the plated layer is provided as a circular protuberance at the injection port of the laser diode. A reflective layer of an optical reflection layer such as a dielectric multilayer film or a silver layer is provided on the plated layer. The circular protrusion of the reflecting layer partially blocks the injection port
