Court of Civil Appeals of Alabama. February 1, 1996. *668 J. Glenn Mims and William E. Shinn, Jr., of Mims & Mims, P.C., Birmingham, for appellant. *669 James D. Brooks of Brooks & Wise, P.C., Cullman, for appellee. YATES, Judge. The parties were married on April 14, 1989, and divorced on July 27, 1994. Following ore tenus proceedings, the trial court divorced the parties and awarded the mother custody of the parties' minor children. The father appeals, contending that the trial court erred in granting the mother custody of the children. The mother testified that the parties had been married seven years and had three children during the marriage, two of whom were minors at the time of the divorce. The mother was the first-hand caretaker of the children, providing many of the necessities for their care. The father testified that the parties' marriage had not been going well for some time, and that the mother had begun an intimate relationship with a man named Bobby Floyd; however, the father did not disclose the name of Floyd's last name. The mother had agreed to relinquish custody of the children to the father at the time of the parties' separation, but she returned to her home in Springfield, Alabama, three days after the parties separated. The father, an unemployed laborer, continued to provide some support for his children, although the parties agreed to provide child support through their divorce proceedings. The mother testified that the children were very close to their father, and that the father often yelled and screamed at them. The father denied being verbally abusive toward the mother or the children. The mother stated that the father's job was one of the reasons that she and the children moved back to Springfield. The mother testified that the father has a chronic illness that caused muscle pain, and that the father requires medication on a regular basis for this ailment. The mother testified that the parties did not communicate with each other about where the father would receive medical treatment, and, therefore, the father was unable to properly care for his children's medical needs.
