Pectus excavatum is a congenital deformity causing depression of the chest wall in children. As the ability to cope with social pressures decreases with age, a major concern is how to evaluate the quality of life (QOL) of these children. In this study, we used the PedsQL 3.0 Generic Core Scales and the PedsQL Multidimensional Fatigue Scale to evaluate the QOL of children with pectus excavatum and other children without thoracic deformity. Participants were 59 children (mean age, 12.6 ± 3.8 years) with pectus excavatum 0cc13bf012

What's the right thing to do? A: The problem was that my AppDelegate.swift file was missing the isInAppPurchaseSupported function. Q: transformer-reactive - Input sanitizing I'm using the transformer-reactive library and would like to sanitize user input before passing it to my model. One of problems associated with optical elements used in information transmission devices is that the transmission loss (coupling loss) of light from an optical fiber (optical waveguide) to the optical element is increased due to the internal optical absorption of a housing. The optical fiber used in information transmission devices needs to be positioned with high precision and fixed, and the housing needs to be provided with a function of suppressing mechanical interference with the optical fiber. Patent Document 1, for example, proposes an optical element in which a light emission surface is formed on a bottom face of a light reception element. In Patent Document 1, an optical element is formed by filling a light reception element with an adhesive containing an ultraviolet curing resin, and an optical fiber is arranged on the optical element at an aperture portion. It is also proposed that the light emission surface and light reception surface are formed by fusion bonding. Furthermore, for example, Patent Document 2 proposes an optical element in which a non-sticking protection layer containing a thermosetting resin is formed on the bottom face of a light reception element.The US and China are engaged in a trade battle, which is unlikely to subside. The timing of the announcement follows a speech by President Donald Trump on Sunday that the Chinese had "foolishly" and "subtly" retaliated against his decision. "China is very
