Q: What is this 'N' label on two B cells in a B2-BCP-NP$alpha$ IBL murine monoclonal antibody? I don't understand what the 'N' label is on the two B cells in the B2-BCP-NP$alpha$ IBL murine monoclonal antibody in this picture and I didn't find any information about it. It is similar to the label on the biotin in the picture below, but I can't find an equivalent in the B2-BCP-NP$alpha$ IBL antibody. A: The labels in both of these images are clicker antibodies. The labels in one (first) image are chicken-derived anti-Rat Ig Y (or anti-Hamster) conjugated to the CAT fluorophore. The labels in the second image are another anti-Rat (but anti-Rat Ig Y conjugated to the Biotin label).
