Ok, that's all Serotonergic and noradrenergic substances in the classical conditioning of morphine-induced conditioned taste aversion. The hypothesis that serotonin (5-HT) and noradrenaline (NA) function in classical conditioning of morphine-induced conditioned taste aversion (CTA) was tested. Neither the 5-HT1A antagonist, WAY-100635, injected ip 30 min before morphine (2.5-10 mg/kg), nor the nonselective 5-HT reuptake inhibitor, citalopram, injected sc for 12 days 20 min before training, before conditioning and 20 min before test (100 mg/kg), impaired the acquisition of the CTA. Pre-training injection of the 5-HT releaser, fenfluramine, did not affect the behavioral parameters of the CTA. Pre-training injection of the 5
