Acanthopanax koreanum extract has anti-proliferative effects on mouse melanoma B16F10 cells and epidermal cells and induces apoptosis in a time-dependent manner. Acanthopanax koreanum (AK) is a well-known medicinal herb used in traditional Korean medicine. In this study, we evaluated the inhibitory effect of AK on the growth of B16F10 melanoma cells in vitro and examined whether it has an effect on the induction of apoptosis. The chloroform (CN)-soluble extract of AK exhibited strong anti-proliferative activity in a dose-dependent manner. In addition, analysis of the DNA fragmentation by agarose gel electrophoresis showed that the CN-extract of AK causes DNA fragmentation. Moreover, flow cytometry and Hoechst 33342 staining analyses revealed that the CN-extract of AK induces apoptosis in the B16F10 melanoma cells. To further identify which pathways are involved in this process, we investigated the effect of AK on Bax, Bcl-2 and p53 protein expression. The results showed that Bcl-2 and p53 proteins are downregulated, whereas Bax is upregulated following AK treatment. These data suggest that AK has cytotoxic and apoptotic effects in B16F10 cells. In conclusion, the CN-extract of AK may be considered as a potent candidate for the development of anti-cancer drugs. Three people are facing charges in Manitoba after a news release from the RCMP warned Manitobans of a scam targeting the internet and telephone. RCMP say someone pretending to be from the RCMP is phoning Manitoba residents and telling them they need to pay for a password to access their online banking accounts. "It is a classic scam that has been seen across Canada and elsewhere," RCMP Sgt. Patty Poulin told CBC News in an email. "Unfortunately, online banking is the most popular way for people to access their accounts and there are definitely some accounts that people can do through the internet and are free of charge, but they have to go through proper channels and in a timely fashion." The alleged scammer is asking for access information and then demanding large sums of
