I figured it was a cover of something I already knew, but it wasn't. I dug the song, it was fresh, funny and the lyrics expressed so well the emptiness of so many people who, will "say goodbye for good", say goodbye to our friends, or say goodbye to our dreams and feelings. There are few songs that make me cry. It is very rare that I get emotional while listening to music. I prefer to have a life filled with laughter, to people who are always smile and to music that will let me jump around like a rock. The song has spoken about such a moment, in which we all have had it, we are all human, we all have emotions and when we let these emotions play out in the world, we find that there's no more room in our souls. We close ourselves because we know that the ones we love are not really capable of handling our emotions, so we retreat and it hurts so much... This is a new level of understanding. There is no need for writing the same song. I can't do anything. I need help. I need support. My tears are not the limits of my feelings anymore. I am so sorry for all the people who suffer without knowing how to deal with emotions. Thank you for listening to my song. My life is so colorful, my daughter is silly and I have two dogs who are always happy to see me, I love my life and my friends. I am not trying to take
