UFS 2.10 HWK Support Suite Setup V02.10 13 ((HOT))

Methods that would otherwise be run in the setUp and tearDown methods (via the run_* methods mentioned above) are available via a run_*_kw methods. For example, you can get the file handle via run_file_handle_kw and inspect its contents via run_file_handle_kw_readline. The run_async method executes the given keyword asynchronously and returns a Future object which can be used to wait on the keyword to complete. The `run_forever` method runs the keyword in an infinite loop and the `run_forever_kw` method executes the keyword asynchronously. If you are using the `pyrobotics.robots.h2s.HWKRobot` or `pyrobotics.robots.s3568.HWKRobot` classes, you can use the `use_h2s_suite` or `use_s3568_suite` methods to specify which HWK type to use. You can also use the `use_h2s_suite_kw` or `use_s3568_suite_kw` methods to specify a keyword to use instead of a directory where the HWK driver binaries can be found. If you are using the `pyrobotics.robots.h2s.HWKRobot` or `pyrobotics.robots.s3568.HWKRobot` classes, you can use the `h2s_suite` or `s3568_suite` arguments to specify which HWK driver to use. You can also use the `h2s_suite_kw` or `s3568_suite_kw` arguments to specify a keyword to use instead of a directory where the HWK driver binaries can be found.
