Since CES, the next major event in the PC industry is happening in May. This year CES 2017 will focus on the gaming and VR areas, meaning we're expecting to hear a lot about both.

Today at CES, NVIDIA announced the GeForce GTX 1080 and 1080 Ti. The 1080 series was introduced back at CES 2016 with the release of the GTX 1080, the world's first 8GB graphics card. While there was a rumor of an upcoming Vega graphics card, the GTX 1080 was the ultimate 1080 graphics card. The 1080 Ti was announced in October with the memory bringing that card up to 12GB, just ahead of the $499.99/$699.99 price point of the 980 Ti. At $699.99, the 1080 Ti is $50 more expensive than the 1080. But the 1080 Ti features a higher boost clock, in-game performance, and memory. Despite being priced higher than the 1080, the 1080 Ti won't appeal to everyone. Most gamers looking for a high-end 1080 graphics card will be looking at the GTX 1080. The 1080 Ti is more interesting for the 3D content creators and enthusiasts than the typical gamer. The 1080 Ti's memory is 16 GB, 1 GB more than the 1080. e79caf774b
