Boring, dull and you do nothing for the money. This one is a classic strategy game from the 80s. Super Mario Bros. It's a bit hard and there is a difficulty level, so this is not a game for everyone. It has some pretty fun level themes (ice world, lava world, etc.), but the difficulty ramps up fast and you don't have a lot of help. If you like the style, you might enjoy this, but the gameplay is repetitive and I was not a fan of it. You know what I love more than the style? A game where I don't have to buy a power-up to win and the game moves at a more relaxed pace. For me, those games are simply way better. I don't want the game to be so hard that I need the extra help, and I don't want it to be so easy that I can't have a hard time. (People may laugh at my gaming preferences, but I don't care, they're just my opinion) Why should I care about how other people play this game? How I play this game is just as good as how anyone else does. And that is how the old school platformers should be: casual and casual. (1990) Janice L. BUONO, Petitioner, v.
INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION OF UTAH, STATE INSURANCE FUND, Respondent. No. 90-030.
Supreme Court of Utah. October 12, 1990. Lee N.
McLay, Layton, for petitioner. R. Paul VanDam, Atty. Gen., Laura B. Dupaix, Atty. Gen., Salt Lake City, Michael M. Elton, Industrial Comm., Salt Lake City, for respondent. PER CURIAM: Petitioner seeks review of the Utah Court of Appeals' opinion affirming the Industrial Commission's reversal of an award of permanent partial disability benefits to her. The Court of Appeals reversed the commission's finding that petitioner "was not given a fair and honest hearing before the Industrial Commission of Utah." We granted permission to appeal to consider the issue of whether Utah Code Ann. § 35-1-83 bars an action in the district court, rather than in the Industrial Commission, to have a determination as to whether a hearing was held by the Industrial Commission set aside and the award of benefits reinstated. The court of appeals' decision was issued on June 7, 1990. The hearing before the Industrial Commission took place one day later on June 8, 1990. It was scheduled to be completed on June 16, 1990. In the meantime, on June 7, the court of appeals set aside the order of the Industrial Commission. No decision was issued on or before June 16, the day the Industrial Commission acted, apparently based on the conclusion that the Industrial Commission failed to hold a hearing in petitioner's case. *8
