The Braves and Mariners played seven innings of a tied game before the game was delayed by rain. It was the second major delay of the day, as the Braves played a 17-minute game against the Padres at Peoria's Principal Park in the first inning. Once the game was called at 11:28 a.m., the field at Principal Park was inspected and deemed playable for the Braves' second game of the day against the Padres. The sky remained cloudy throughout the game, but there was never rain and the delay was not related to any concern about weather. Joe Kelly, who pitched the eighth inning in relief of Will Harris, was placed on the suspended list Sunday, and he was also placed on the suspended list for Monday's game after the game was delayed. One Braves player felt the decision to place him on the suspension list was an overreaction to the situation. "I don't think he's a guy who should have been suspended," first baseman Freddie Freeman said. "He's a guy who had a few personal things going on, but the night before a series against the Mariners, we had a bus full of young kids who are interested in seeing what baseball is like and he's just a guy who has been great for us. We were able to be there for them and make sure that the kids had a good time. He was at the top of the list and he should have been
