I have the following table Table #1: tbl_Listing colID 1 2 3 4 6 5 I want to pull out the colID where it has all of the values 1,2,3 in it, so for example, it would pull out colID 4 or colID 5 as they both have 1,2,3 Any help would be appreciated, thank you. A- If you want to just get the IDs that meet your criteria without trying to see if they're in there, you can use a NOT EXISTS construct: SELECT colID FROM tbl_Listing WHERE colID NOT IN (1, 2, 3) If you want to do it other way, you can write a WHERE colID IN (... list of values) condition, and check it for each row. Q: HttpWebRequest error 0x80040151 (IO_PENDING) I have a piece of code which checks the incoming headers for the referrer, if it's not from the same site, then redirects the request back to the same page. I have tested it in Opera, Firefox and Chrome and everything works fine. The issue is that in IE8, 9 and 10 if the user has previously been to site A and from there is a referral to site B, the request to B will throw an error (0x80040151 IO_PENDING) and returns back to A. I have tried increasing the timeout for the request, and changing the HttpWebRequest to synchronous but that had no effect. I have attached the code below. If there is a better way of doing this please let me know but I am out of ideas. private void pingReferral(HttpWebRequest request) { string referrer = request.ServerVariables["HTTP_REFERER"]; HttpWebRequest tempRequest = (request as WebRequest).CreateDefaultRequest(); tempRequest.AllowAutoRedirect = false; tempRequest.Headers.Add("if-none-match", "xxxx"); if (request.Headers["if-modified-since"] != null)
